Pacific Natural At Home

Jenni Kayne

This second book from Jenni Kayne, the creator of an ever-growing lifestyle brand spanning apparel, interiors, and beyond, focuses on the space that matters most: home. Framed through the California state of mind, Pacific Natural At Home follows the success of Pacific Natural: Simple Seasonal Entertaining and brings us inside some of the most inspiring spaces across the West Coast.

Jenni Kayne is an extension of the California aesthetic—one that embraces comfort without compromising on style and is mindful of every last detail. Pacific Natural At Home speaks to this design ethos, highlighting Jenni's penchant and passion for interiors through beautiful photography, impactful tips, and thoughtful commentary on the California sensibility.

Featuring inspiring women and their beautifully unique homes, Pacific Natural At Home offers a window into each woman's personalized approach to designing with all facets of life in mind. Broken up into four distinct landscapes—canyon, ocean, desert, city—each section aims to capture the essence of West Coast interiors. From an ocean retreat overlooking the Pacific Ocean to a minimalist home that places a focus on mindful living, each space is showcased through the lens of Jenni's own design philosophy.

A perfectly curated guide to California design, Pacific Natural At Home is an inspiring ode to the special spaces and places that we call home.

The Bold Beach House

When Vanessa Alexander set out to design the Malibu home she shares with her husband, Steve, and their sons, she landed on a stylistic choice that made her beach house bold: she painted it black. For the interior designer behind Alexander Design, the decision was the final step in defining her take on the beach house aesthetic—but the layer of paint is just the beginning.

Vanessa is no stranger to Malibu and its celebration of outdoor living. Eager to capture the beauty of her surroundings, Vanessa made sure her space was relaxed and full of light. High ceilings with skylights let the light pour in from above, while walls of glass emphasize the landscape, blurring the lines between indoors and out.

The house was built from the ground up, and the finished product illuminates a fine-tuned process. Vanessa and Steve dreamed up their beachside vision with support from Kovac Design Studio and Terremoto, creating a home that reflects how their family likes to live: at ease, outdoors, and together. Regardless of the time of day, you're likely to find Vanessa and her loved ones in the kitchen and family room, where the open floor plan is perfect for seamless entertaining. From the hand-forged brass cabinetry to the striking pendant that hangs over the island, custom-designed pieces punctuate every room.

Finding a balance between luxurious and livable isn't always easy, but Vanessa does so beautifully. The skateboard ramp in the yard has as much importance as the Pierre Yovanovitch light fixtures and the turn-of-the-century farm table. Contrast is constantly at work, creating a space suited for the animated and active family with a penchant for exceptional design. Vanessa's enviable ability to make a highly designed space feel like home is what shapes her distinct version of coastal sensibility.

Jenni's Tip: If you're a frequent entertainer, keep an open flow from the kitchen to the family room with plenty of movable seating.

“I feel immediately inspired and at ease in the environment we have created. It’s truly a haven and destination where my family and I can put away some of the stresses of the world.”
