Pacific Natural At Home

Jenni Kayne

This second book from Jenni Kayne, the creator of an ever-growing lifestyle brand spanning apparel, interiors, and beyond, focuses on the space that matters most: home. Framed through the California state of mind, Pacific Natural At Home follows the success of Pacific Natural: Simple Seasonal Entertaining and brings us inside some of the most inspiring spaces across the West Coast.

Jenni Kayne is an extension of the California aesthetic—one that embraces comfort without compromising on style and is mindful of every last detail. Pacific Natural At Home speaks to this design ethos, highlighting Jenni's penchant and passion for interiors through beautiful photography, impactful tips, and thoughtful commentary on the California sensibility.

Featuring inspiring women and their beautifully unique homes, Pacific Natural At Home offers a window into each woman's personalized approach to designing with all facets of life in mind. Broken up into four distinct landscapes—canyon, ocean, desert, city—each section aims to capture the essence of West Coast interiors. From an ocean retreat overlooking the Pacific Ocean to a minimalist home that places a focus on mindful living, each space is showcased through the lens of Jenni's own design philosophy.

A perfectly curated guide to California design, Pacific Natural At Home is an inspiring ode to the special spaces and places that we call home.

OCEAN

The Entertainer's Ocean Oasis

The kitchen is the heart of every home. That's certainly the case with Courteney Cox's Malibu retreat. Overlooking the ocean, her space is one of the most idyllic places to go to for a laid-back dinner party, celebratory evening, or casual weekend. Built by Kovac Design Studio to make the most of the view, almost every room opens up to the ocean as sliding glass doors work to epitomize the California feeling.

Courteney's home is marked by a seamless flow that allows guests to wander inside and out with ease. The spirit of the beach is amplified through organic features like wooden accents and stone-filled pathways, while landscape design by Coral Browning Gardens creates the ideal coastal environment. Every detail matters, but nothing is too precious as beach days turn into fireside evenings.

Working with designers Trip Haenisch, Cliff Fong, and, most recently, Clements Design, Courteney chose to forgo the beach house archetype of bright whites and blues, opting instead for darker, moodier moments. The informal yet elevated nature of her design choices ensures guests are always at ease, while rich tones and unique collectible pieces are mixed in faultlessly.

The family room connects the kitchen with the outdoors, giving friends and family the ability to lounge as Courteney cooks. In a nod to quintessential California living, the windows are always open, creativity is in constant motion, and entertaining is an everyday occasion. From poolside views to the alfresco dining room, this is a place you come to and never want to leave.

OCEAN

“I feel extremely lucky to be able to open the door and see the vast view of the ocean. It makes me immediately stop and take a breath of gratitude.”

—COURTENEY COX

Jenni's Tip: Neutrals mean more than shades of beige. Find your core palette, using darker accents for a modern yet grounded feel.

Jenni's Tip: Think of open shelving as a gallery for your favorite ceramics to be enjoyed by all. If it's in your collection and on display, don't be afraid to use it daily.
